FAR EAST

2. Chinese people being told Korean truce is temporary:

[Redacted]
[Redacted] Chinese Communist officials
there are stating in public that the Korean truce is only temporary, as it will "inevitably be broken by Americans."

25X1

The American consul general in Hong Kong notes that according to the North Korean pilot who defected to the West recently, military units in North Korea are being told that the truce is merely a breathing spell. The consul general believes that such statements may indicate a Communist intention to break the truce, but that they are more probably intended to keep the troops alert and to get the populace to perform tasks set by the State.

Comment: Communist internal propaganda throughout the period of the truce talks followed a similar line.

[REDACTED] The Israeli government apparently has been both surprised and disturbed by the sudden violence of Jordanian reaction and the international condemnation of the 14 October attack by its forces on a Jordanian village. Under

[REDACTED]

In an effort to avoid direct responsibility for last week's incident, the Israeli delegate on the UN Mixed Armistice Commission in Jerusalem offered on 15 October to vote for the resolution charging Israel with the attack if there was no mention of "Israeli regular army" involvement. Initial public reactions of the Israeli government suggest that it will seek to divert the current international focus from the specific incident to Arab-Israeli disputes in general.

There is still no evidence that the incident will lead to a breakdown of the Arab-Israeli armistice.

6. Israel pushes Jordan River diversion project:

25X1A

[REDACTED] Israeli work on the diversion of the upper Jordan River in the demilitarized zone between Israel and Syria is continuing on a three-shift basis in an atmosphere of "feverish activity," according to an American official who visited the site on 15 October.

Military police are reportedly constructing defense installations at the scene.

Comment: On 23 September General Bennike, chief of staff of the UN Truce Supervision Organization, requested Israel to suspend work on diversion of the river.
